

AIRELOOM®

LIMITED WARRANTY

Congratulations on your recent purchase of your Aireloom® product! Please retain this warranty card along with your original receipt. If properly cared for, your mattress* is warranted to the "original purchaser" as of the "original purchase date" against defective workmanship or materials for the amount of years dictated by the warranty code (A1, A2, A3, A4, or C1) on the law label of your product. This Limited Warranty is applicable when the sleep system is maintained in accordance with the provisions in the Mattress Warranty Card.

How can I get service on my warranty? If a manufacturing defect does appear, it should immediately be reported to the Aireloom® dealer in your area. Do not return the product until you have received proper approval from the dealer or made transportation arrangements (transportation cost is not covered). Purchaser may contact the manufacturer whose name and address is shown on the card to obtain information on warranty performance, including a list of Aireloom® dealers. The sleep system (or single component) will be repaired or replaced at our option during the duration of this warranty without charge; provided, however, transportation charges will be the responsibility of the purchaser and must be prepaid.

If identical product materials are not available at the time of product service, Aireloom® reserves the right to substitute material or product of comparable quality. Aireloom® reserves the right to refuse service and void warranty if the sleep system is found to be in an unsanitary condition or shows abuse or damage through accident or neglect. Warranty on Queen and King size sleep systems will apply only when supported by a heavy duty support system with proper center support and legs and is otherwise maintained in accordance with the provisions of the Mattress Warranty Card. Valid in the US and Canada only. See importer of record for the warranty specific to other countries.

MATTRESS PRODUCT CARE

WHAT TO EXPECT from your new purchase:

Adjustment period - After all those grueling years on that old bed, you may need some time to get accustomed to the new mattress - just as you might expect with new shoes. This period of adjustment may take a week or much longer; or, it could be as brief as the time it takes you to fall asleep on the very first night of use. Firmness may vary from the showroom model until after this "adjustment period".

In addition, the comfort layers of the mattress may take a brief time to conform to your weight and contours. To properly break-in the mattress, it is necessary to utilize the entire sleep surface.

Body impressions - New comfort layers begin to conform instantly. One can anticipate body impressions to form as a result. Body impressions are typical and therefore do not mean that the mattress is defective. To prevent excessive body impressions, you must rotate your mattress as specified and sleep over the entire surface.

NOTE: Mattress purchased without a complementing (matching) box spring holds a full product warranty. However, if premature wear or sagging in the mattress was caused by inappropriate box-spring or foundation support, it will void the warranty.

PROPER BODY IMPRESSION

A "body impression" in the mattress may appear as a "sag". The comfort layers are design to conform to the sleeper's individual contours. An impression simply indicates that these layers are settling and conforming as they should.

SAGGING MATTRESS

Premature wear or "sag" can be caused by poor box spring or foundation support.

Mattress Care: Pivotal points to cover:

Support mattress correctly. When investing in a new mattress make sure to replace your existing box spring. Mattresses today are normally built with a matching box spring to ensure proper support.

Using a new mattress with an old box spring has three disadvantages: 1. The "feel" you felt when you bought the mattress in the store won't be replicated when you get home 2. The old box spring may make the new mattress feel somewhat like the old one 3. The new mattress is more likely to sag or wear quicker.

Move mattress correctly. Side-stitched handmade mattresses can be "flexed" to allow the mattress to fit through doorways, but under normal circumstances, DO NOT fold, curl, or bend a mattress.

Frame mattress correctly. Use a strong and stable support system. To comply with the warranty, queen and king size beds require the stability of a metal bed frame with the aid of a firm center support. The center support for the queen and the king must have adequate legs to add the proper support needed. Make sure that the legs are perpendicular to the bed frame and all are level.

Rotating the mattress correctly. The occasional rotating of your mattress will help in the proper conditioning of cushioning materials, preserve comfort, and maximize its life.

Treat mattress correctly. It is important to keep your bed clean and dry. Make sure to always use a mattress pad. To prevent wear, don't excessively bend, do not jump or stand on mattress. Also, vacuuming the mattress annually helps with allergies and keeps the bed in good shape.

Examples of minimum support for queen, king, and California king size mattress & foundations

Mattress only - must be on properly supported solid (non-sagging) base or box spring.

Note: If Aireloom® legs were supplied with your Sleep System and you choose to use them, please note that the legs are designed to withstand the weight of the Sleep System plus two average weight people. The legs are stationary and are not designed to withstand sideways motion from pushing the Sleep System when fully assembled. If you must move your Sleep System, first remove the mattress and Comfort Pad when legs are supplied. There are 9 for a Queen and 12 for a King. See instructions in carton with legs. Attaching any legs other than Aireloom® legs may void your warranty. If placed on slatted bed system, slats cannot be more than 2" apart. t

MATTRESS PRODUCT ATTENTION

How to Rotate Your Mattress: In order to properly "break in" or condition your new mattress and to evenly distribute the comfort layers which helps minimize body impressions, Aireloom recommends the following appropriate rotation methods.

THE METHOD FOR THE MATTRESS

1. Rotate mattress head to foot

2. Align mattress and foundation

THE METHOD FOR THE AIRELOOM COMFORT PAD (IF APPLICABLE)

3. Rotate the pad head to foot.

4. Align pad, mattress, and foundation

Note: During the "break in period", rotate the Comfort Pad and mattress after the first 2-4 weeks or if body impressions occur. During this period, you must also sleep over the entire sleep surface and the middle of the mattress every 90 days. It is best to alternate the rotation of the Comfort Pad and mattress to allow the maximum surface break in.
